E. Report of the Librarian of Virginia

Dr. Treadway reported that many of the issues on her list were covered under other reports. She reported the Library is trying to keep its momentum going, to continue to serve people, and to stretch every resource it has.

Dr. Treadway introduced Tom Camden, director of special collections, and Harriet Henderson Coalter, director of the Richmond Public Library. Mr. Camden and Ms Coalter discovered three books from Thomas Jefferson's private library at Montecello in the Richmond

Public Library collection. Ms Coalter had some concerns about their condition, security, and accessibility and approached the Mayor of the City of Richmond and the Richmond Public Library Board of Trustees about this matter. The City of Richmond and the Board of Trustees were very pleased to make these books a gift to the Library of Virginia. Mr. Camden reported these items have already been cataloged and are available in our on-line catalog. A commitment of private funding for conservation has been received from the National Society of Colonial Dames, Washington, D.C. Chapter. Carole M. Weinstein entered a motion to authorize a formal thank you to the Richmond Public Library. The motion was seconded by Mr. Woodrum and passed unanimously by the Board.
